CYRUS DALLIN RELATES ART EXPERIENCES

Entertains Woman's Alliance of First Parish Church. Pays Tribute to Violinist on Program.

Cyrus E. Dallin, Arlington's famous sculptor, entertained the Italy, and the five-year plan in Rus-Woman's Alliance of the First Parish Church Monday afternoon by relating his early life and experiences. He chose as his subject, "Artistic Reminiscences and Otherwise".

Mr. Dallin began his address with an eloquent tribute to the violinist, who had just played, explaining that art is only possible through emotional expression. The child wants the truth and that attitude must be preserved in art.

COLLINS TO RUN FOR RE-ELECTION LETTER STATES

Present Chairman of Selectmen Was Undecided. Letter Touches On Record and Qualifications.

Great Chorus and Rumor has had it that Leonard Collins, present chairman of the Board of Selectmen, did not intend to have his name on the ballot when the voters of Arlington go to the polls to elect town officials on the fifth day of March. But when the Advocate's reporter called him on the phone yesterday, Mr. Collins said that he had finally decided to run for re-election, and he was announcing that fact in an open letter. The letter follows:

Mr. Estabrook is very well known in Arlington, having been active in local politics for the past several years. He has served on the Finance Committee and is at present its chairman. Because he is the holder of one of the most important offices in the town, Mr. Estabrook has been reluctant to consent to run for the Board of Selectmen. But having accepted the endorsement of the Citizens, he now tells the Advocate that he will probably resign from the Finance Committee.

Before the Citizens Committee got down to the business of selecting a slate, a chairman was elected to serve for the coming year. That man was Mortimer H. Wells, who is a member of the Arlington School Committee.

John L. Donovan, Jr., present Line Coach at Harvard and Field Representative of the Federal Housing Administration said, in part, after he was presented to the Arlington Community Club by Henry E. "Let us analyze the figures: Of the 29,000,000 buildings in this country. 16,000,000 are in need of repair. Of these 16,000,000 three million are so hadly depreciated as to be unfit for human habitation. The other 13,000,-000 can be saved from rapidly accelerating depreciation if repairs are made now. Delay in making these repairs in millions of instances will mean rapidly increasing damage and much higher cost for later repairs.

"Accordingly, this Act provided that a man needing to borrow to improve his property could make a strictly character loan without endorsement of mortgage, in total amount not exceeding $2,000, to be repaid monthly within a period not to exceed five years, the only Government restriction being that the amount borrowed should not involve an annual payment in excess of onefifth of his annual income. On the total amount of loans thus made by any approved financial institution. the Government insures a total of 20% against loss, this being more than six times the highest loss ratio which ever has developed in timepayment financing, even at the depth of the depression. For all practical purposes this is 100% insurance against loss to the financial institution and provides for immediate and complete liquidity in the event the financial institution requires it.

Miss Jessie Wilkinson gave an interesting talk to the members of the Women's Union of the First Baptist Church at their regular meeting, Monday afternoon.

Miss Wilkinson for many years was a teacher of small children in the schools of Kobe, Japan, and she knows and loves that country well. She illustrated her talk by showing specimens of dainty handwork, bright kimonos and other garments such as Japanese girls and boys wear, and pictures which her "little people", as she calls them, had made for her to bring to the U. S. to show our children how their faraway cousins dress.

The social hour was in charge of the Bartlett Avenue Group, Mrs. Charles F. Atwood being the chairman of the committee for the afternoon assisted by Mesdames Evans,

AN INVESTMENT

Professor Floyd E. Armstrong in his Arlington address last week expressed our own sentiments very closely in his kindly criticisms of the policies of the present national government. Like the professor, we fear the consequences of increasing governmental activity in business in direct competition with private enterprise, while we applaud the humanitarian efforts of the President.

The E. R. A. concert in Robbins Memorial Town Hall Wednesday evening brings home one of the great humanitarian benefits of a free-spending government. Music, while it is a heritage which must be developed and fostered, even at the expense of personal sacrifice, is admittedly a luxury, not an absolute necessity for existence. Musicians, as well as artists in other lines, have, consequently, been terribly effected by economic conditions.

The great concert of Wednesday night brings increasing realization that we may be thankful for a government of unquestionably high ideals, even though we believe that many of its policies are obviously ill-advised. Here is an example of munificence which does not, as far as we can see, interfere greatly with individual enterprise. If it were not for E. R. A. funds, there is no doubt that most, if not all, of the singers and instrumentalists who performed Wednesday evening, and other units exactly like them, would have no work whatsoever and would of necessity be supported by direct dole either that or dig ditches, and it has been clearly demonstrated that already there are far too many shovel-wielders.

It is true that Arlington has its own orchestras and choruses which need and greatly deserve public support. But these could hardly be classed as "private enterprise" in the usual sense of the phrase. The Arlington Community Symphony Orchestra, for instance, is composed largely of professional musicians, but even these give of their time for rehearsals and concerts. In other words, none of them, nor the director, would lose a cent of income if the local institution were to go out of existence. Of course, it is our sincere belief that in the event of that unthinkable contingency, the town would suffer a great loss; nevertheless the musicians themselves would lose nothing but pleasurable responsibility.

There were some who opposed bringing the E. R. A. units to Arlington on the ground that the citizens of the town were already fostering similar organizations whose patronage might be impaired. We are inclined to believe that was a mistaken idea. The more good music the public hears the more likely it will be inclined to support its own musical institutions. The fact that Wednesday evening's "free concert" drew hardly more people than do the cost-paid performances of the Community Symphony Orchestra proves that even Arlington people require more musical education.

On the way out of the hall we heard this: "Wasn't it a perfectly beautiful concert-and free, too!"

We heartily endorse the first part of that exclamation and congratulate the Arlington Men's Club on their enterprise for good in bringing the units here. But while no admission was charged, it is hardly correct to say that the concert was at no cost. For a long time now the public has been supporting those musicians both in bodily requirements and in the advancement of their art. To draw an analogy, we are the tax-paying parents who have been paying for the music lessons of our children. Wednesday night's concert was the recital demonstrating the worth of that investment.

Unfortunately, not all government spending is investment—quite the contrary. But the fostering of art in all its forms is certainly one which pays dividends. Until these artists are again able to support themselves, it is the duty of an uncomplaining patron to do so. It is an unfortunate fact that the arts have been more or less dependent on patronage down through the ages.

Correspondence

The Editor,

Arlington Advocate.

Dear Sir: When I listen to the arguments of the advocates of the "Townsend Plan". I am reminded of the "Populist" or "People's Party" of 1892. I was very young then and I got some of my information from the Encyclopedia. It was a very popular plan then for the people who thought it was a "cureall" for poverty. They obtained twenty-two electoral votes and many Governorships in the west When some of these states enacted into law some of these "Populist" ideas, it was not long before their fallacies were apparent and bank after bank failed. It was not many before "Populists" never heard of. In my opinion this is the fate that awaits the "easy

Here and There

Sometimes others are much kinder to us than we are to ourselves. The Advocate passed its sixty-third birthday anniversary some two weeks ago, and we noted the fact in a short item of about ten words. But the Boston Transcript honored us with a headed notice on the front page of its popular Saturday night edition. We quote the following:

"The Arlington Advocate, a weekly newspaper, will be sixtythree years old on Sunday. It was on January 6, 1872, that Charles' S. Parker, Civil War veteran who died in 1928, at the age of ninety, put out his first copy of the paper, in his triple capacity of editor, publisher and business manager. Until his death he continued to serve as editor, although he was not active toward the end owing to his age and poor health. Mr. Parker also for many years ran the Lexington Minute Man, which he sold more than seven years ago to Charles Elliot Hadley, editor of the Lexington Times.

"Following Mr. Parker's death, his daughter, Miss Grace Parker, who was assistant editor for a number of years, served as editor until the paper was purchased about six years ago by Mr. Parker's son-in-law, Harold Blake Wood."

And it's all correct, too! would add, however, that in the early days the late Mr. Parker had more capacities than three. He was not only editor, publisher and business manager, but he was reporter, printer and advertising salesman as well. Another important addition is the fact that Mr. Parker's grandson is now the editor of the paper. + + +

The local political pot is beginning to boil up in good shape, as is the custom in this season. This week the citizens committee announced its slate with Harold M. Estabrook, the present chairman of the Finance Committee, at its head, running for the Board of Selectmen. Concerning Mr. Estabrook, we can not help saying, were we right, or were we right?

And we learned yesterday that Leonard Collins, the present Chairman of the Board of Selectmen, has finally decided that he will run for re-election; so a good hard fight is will be a two-man contest, without three or four others horning in to confuse the issue.

Ralph Adams, the present incumbent, has been endorsed by the Citizens Committee to run for re-election to the Board of Public Works. But we do not even dare hope that the P. W. battle can be confined to two candidates. In fact, several others have announced intentions of running for the office. The latest is Henry E. Keenan, who has become very prominent in the last few weeks by his efforts as chairman of the local Better Housing Committee. + + +

The writer is beginning to think that it is perhaps a lucky thing that he is a little bit weak on spelling. That addiction to weird combinations of letters has necessitated constant reference to a standard dictionary. which is sometimes a rather fortunate habit.

Last week we had occasion to write something about Ed Center, and we were looking for a way to de scribe a phase of his profession with one word. We hit on "Chorister", which answered the purpose exactly.

Nevertheless we ran into a lot of criticism on account of that word. You see Ed has a lot of friends and they all rose to his defense when they thought we were calling him a chorus-man or something. Those people would probably have as much difficulty as we did finding the word in the dictionary. Strangely enough, it is not spelled choruster and it does not mean chorus-man. The dictionary says, "A chorus or choir director. A singer in a choir, especially

The address, which was illustrated with many specimens which he had gathered at the spot, was interesting and instructive, and was presented in a very delightful manner.
